(a) Harvard Roundtable on Executive Compensation

Together with the Program on Corporate Governance, the HIIF co-sponsored the Harvard Roundtable on Executive Compensation, which took place on Wednesday, October 21, 2015 at Harvard Law School.

The event brought together for a roundtable discussion prominent experts with a wide range of perspectives on the subject, including senior officers from leading institutional investors (both mutual funds and public pension funds) with aggregate assets under management exceeding $13 trillion, and from significant issuers, prominent advisors, and academics. The Roundtable sessions focused on issues relating to the process of determining executive compensation included discussion of the work of proxy advisors and their interaction with investors and issuers, engagement between issuers and investors themselves and compensation disclosure issues, such as pay-for-performance disclosure and pay-ratio disclosure. The Roundtable then moved to a discussion of the substantive terms of compensation arrangements, including compensation levels, composition, and structures. Issues that were considered included the composition of long-term and short-term incentive pay and contractual provisions such as clawbacks and hedging policies.
The Roundtable ended with a discussion of current issues in corporate governance, including lessons from the 2015 proxy season, current thinking on engagement with investors, and proxy access.

(b) Harvard Roundtable on Corporate Governance

Together with the Program on Corporate Governance, the HIIF co-sponsored the Harvard Roundtable Corporate Governance, which took place on Wednesday, March 16, 2016 at Harvard Law School.

The event brought together for a roundtable discussion 79 prominent experts with a wide range of perspectives on this subject, including those of investors, issuers, advisors, academics, and public officials. The Roundtable sessions focused on current issues in corporate governance, including those likely to arise in the upcoming proxy season. The Roundtable began with a discussion of board election arrangements, including issues of proxy access and universal ballots. The discussion then moved on to consider shareholder rights to participate in corporate decision-making. Topics discussed ranged from poison pills, rights to call a special meeting, and rights to submit shareholder proposals. The Roundtable then discussed issues related to board composition and leadership, board diversity and refreshment, and the separation of chairman and CEO. Finally, participants considered issues related to political spending and social responsibility resolutions.

(c) Harvard Roundtable on Shareholder Engagement

Together with the Program on Corporate Governance, the HIIF co-sponsored the Harvard Roundtable on Shareholder Engagement, which took place on Wednesday, June 9, 2016 at Harvard Law School.

The Roundtable focused on shareholder engagement with issuers, including engagements by activist and institutional investors. The Roundtable began with a session in which Leo E. Strine, Jr., Chief Justice of the Delaware Supreme Court, engaged with participants and responded to questions and comments. The Roundtable then moved to a discussion of current debates on shareholder activism, including debates on short-termism and on buybacks and distributions to shareholders. Next, the Roundtable proceeded to a discussion of engagements, including engagements between issuers and investors (both activists and non-activists); engagements among investors; and outcomes and settlements of engagements. The Roundtable ended with a discussion of legal arrangements and proposed reforms.
