Please review the guidelines for written work found in the Handbook of Academic Policies and if applicable, select below and discuss with your faculty supervisor:

- If applicable, I have reviewed the school's Multiple Use of Papers policy.
- If my work is to fulfill the Analytical Paper requirement, I understand that a substantially complete draft must be peer reviewed by a fellow HLS upper-level J.D. student, in accordance with HLS policy.
- If RA/TF work for credit; I understand I cannot be awarded credit for activities such as pulling together materials, developing a syllabus, maintaining a course website, grading, tutoring other students, or similar work. I understand that I cannot be compensated for this work and that my work must include original thought, legal analysis, and page counts commensurate to the written work requirement.
- If using Human subjects for research, I understand that my project will need to be reviewed by the Harvard University Area IRB. I understand that the IRB review process requires time; and if my project will or might involve human subjects, I must begin the review process well before the term in which I plan to conduct research. I understand the IRB office may be reached at (617) 496-2847 or by email at cuhs@harvard.edu.
- The proposed writing is co-authored or writing for Moot Court projects.
- This paper is being written for additional credit in the following course: _____

ADDITIONAL REQUIRED INFORMATION FOR WINTER TERM WRITING:

Will this paper require international travel for research? Yes No If so, where? _____

HLS STUDENTS TRAVELING ABROAD MUST REVIEW AND COMPLY WITH INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL REQUIREMENTS.

These involve completing pre-departure training and an entry in the MyTrips platform, submitting an Assumption of Risk Form, and taking certain steps in relation to travel to areas categorized as high-risk. Further information can be found here: <https://hls.harvard.edu/dept/ils/international-travel/>.

I have read the above and agree to the terms. I agree to produce the required number of pages for the credits I have selected, as specified in the Handbook of Academic Policies.
